pp. 104-107 Extract From:

Paul Celan.

The Meridian. Final Version. Drafts. Materials.

Edited by Bernhardt Böschenstein and Heino Schmull. Translated by Pierre Joris.

Stanford University Press, 2011.

Series: Meridian: Crossing Aesthetics Series editor: Werner Hamacher

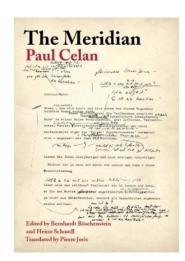

Stanford UP Book link

http://www.sup.org/book.cgi?id=1236

Stanford UP Series link

http://www.sup.org/browse.cgi?x=series&y=Meridian:%20Crossing%20Aesthetics

STANFORD UNIVERSITY PRESS

Poem and language

420∢►484	237 A 28,2	Ms.
	In the poem:
272	1. Direction (wherefrom, whereto), language → soliloquy → conversation	n.
	2. Time
	3. The objects, the world, Being, the to-be, Appearance
	4. Thought and language (Theaetet-citation etc.)
595, 843	4 a.: the tropes (Benveniste essay)
	***
152∢	238 A 33,1	Ms.
445, 34/493, 843	Mysticism as wordlessness
, ,	Poetry as form
► 443	239 A 33,2	Ms.
	The poem is inscribed as the figure of the complete language; but lan
381	{.}; that which actualizes itself—language—takes steps, as soon as that has happened, back into
05.07.055	the realm of the possible. "Le Poème", word-sequences? sentences? writes
26, 27, 255;	à l'état naissant; language in statu nascendi, thus language in the process of liberation.
32/74, 259
203∢►212	***
=766	240/410 Workbook II, 15 [4]	19.8.60, Ms.
68/384, 338	The poem is the place where synonymity becomes impossible: it only h therewith its meaning level. Stepping out of language, the language. This opposition cannot be sublated.
	$\times$ / that's why the poem, in its being and not through its subject matter true humanity: it teaches to understand the other as the other L i.e. in its of

			The Poem
brotherliness with <new "8.19.60"="" dated:="" page,=""> respect before   tl</new>	his other, in the turning tow	ard this	33/111, 401, 747,
other, even there where the other appears as the hooked-nosed	and misshapen—in no way a	almond-	843
eyed—accused by the "straightnosed"			394
***
Ms.	В 3а	241	463∢►547
The poem comes into being through intercourse with someth	ning that remains {I}invisibl	e to us:	10 through intercourse with language. It
	0.5.7	242	26 0 587
Ts.	C 5,3	242	26∢►587
a meeting with language is a meeting with the invisible			256
***
Ms.	F 55,1	243	535 ∢≻ 307
INI.S.	r 33,1	243	333 7F3 07
Something of the foreknowledge of language falls to the one	who is attentive: the invisible	e of the	771; 854
"point of crystallization"
***
			► 427
Ms.	F 115,2	244	=909
***
from 22.8.60, Ms.	Workbook II, 21 [10]	245	=809
T. <he> poem as epiphany of language.</he>			468
***
Ms.	C 14,1	246	516∢
	·
Opinion is more than reflection
-i- The poem is monotone/monotonic			658
Ms.	C 14,2	247	▶ 682
1925.	C 14,2	247	F 082
There is a fate of the words of the poem prefigured by lange	uage; whi, as there is Cens	ure and
Economy for, Emile Benveniste{,} has shown it for οὐσία, for	thought.
***
			▶233
	Workbook II, 21 [19]	248	=818
from 22.8.60, Ms.
-i- Language as the language of the one who speaks //			502
			502

105

The Poem

***

►671 =763	249	Workbook II, 15 [1]	Ms.
27; 272, 808	The asso	nance of language (as a whole) in the poem—
		= un	transferable_
			.,
744∢►596	250	F 29,2	Ms.
	We conv	erse with language—despite and with all the "speakers	,,,
		***
326∢►118	251	F 65,4	Ms.
	; Carol	in the intercourse with language in light of the	real comming up of language
	-i- Carei	ulness in the intercourse with language, in light of the	[rear] opening-up or language—
		***
338∢►386	252	C 10,2	Ts.
	this drea	attains this state as language and through language— am and what's great in it lives on!—, will realize an	rt—I am quoting a saying by A.
587	He who this drea Schönbe from hav from the		rt—I am quoting a saying by A. ome from being able to, it comes ot through what has been derived d; we become aware of it through
587	He who this drea Schönbe from hav from the	am and what's great in it lives on!—, will realize at rg, I quote it according to T. Adorno—'Art doesn't co ving to. You see, there is also this kind of etymology: no imperceptible root do we have the true and the ground	rt—I am quoting a saying by A. ome from being able to, it comes ot through what has been derived d; we become aware of it through
587 549 ∢≻ 744	He who this drea Schönbe from hav from the	am and what's great in it lives on!—, will realize at rg, I quote it according to T. Adorno—'Art doesn't coving to. You see, there is also this kind of etymology: not imperceptible root do we have the true and the ground-distant branch Lthe branch that stands into time the	rt—I am quoting a saying by A. ome from being able to, it comes ot through what has been derived d; we become aware of it through
	He who this dres Schönbe from hav from the the root root.  253  Art—I q come fro	am and what's great in it lives on!—, will realize at rg, I quote it according to T. Adorno—'Art doesn't coving to. You see, there is also this kind of etymology: not imperceptible root do we have the true and the ground-distant branch the branch that stands into time the branch that stands into	rt—I am quoting a saying by A.  ome from being able to, it comes ot through what has been derived d; we become aware of it through e branch driven into time by the  Ms.  Arnold Schönberg—, art doesn't othis etymon: not the one derived
349 ∢≻ 744	He who this dres Schönbe from have from the the root root.  255  Art—I q come from a reference a refer	am and what's great in it lives on!—, will realize at rg, I quote it according to T. Adorno—'Art doesn't coving to. You see, there is also this kind of etymology: not imperceptible root do we have the true and the ground-distant branch the branch that stands into time the branch that stands into	rt—I am quoting a saying by A.  ome from being able to, it comes ot through what has been derived d; we become aware of it through e branch driven into time by the  Ms.  Arnold Schönberg—, art doesn't e this etymon: not the one derived ne one perceived on the branch—
	He who this dres Schönbe from hav from the the root root.  253  Art—I q come fro	am and what's great in it lives on!—, will realize at rg, I quote it according to T. Adorno—'Art doesn't coving to. You see, there is also this kind of etymology: not imperceptible root do we have the true and the ground-distant branch the branch that stands into time the branch that stands into	rt—I am quoting a saying by A.  ome from being able to, it comes ot through what has been derived d; we become aware of it through e branch driven into time by the  Ms.  Arnold Schönberg—, art doesn't othis etymon: not the one derived
349 ∢≻ 744	He who this dres Schönbe from have from the the root root.  255  Art—I q come from a reference a refer	am and what's great in it lives on!—, will realize at rg, I quote it according to T. Adorno—'Art doesn't coving to. You see, there is also this kind of etymology: no imperceptible root do we have the true and the groundistant branch the branch that stands into time the branch that stands into tim	rt—I am quoting a saying by A.  ome from being able to, it comes ot through what has been derived d; we become aware of it through e branch driven into time by the  Ms.  Arnold Schönberg—, art doesn't e this etymon: not the one derived ne one perceived on the branch—
349 ∢≻ 744	He who this dres Schönbe from has from the the root root.  253  Art—I q come from a r	am and what's great in it lives on!—, will realize at rg, I quote it according to T. Adorno—'Art doesn't coving to. You see, there is also this kind of etymology: not imperceptible root do we have the true and the ground-distant branch the branch that stands into time the branch that stands into	rt—I am quoting a saying by A.  ome from being able to, it comes ot through what has been derived d; we become aware of it through e branch driven into time by the  Ms.  Arnold Schönberg—, art doesn't e this etymon: not the one derived ne one perceived on the branch—
349 ∢≻ 744	He who this dres Schönbe from has from the the root root.  253  Art—I q come from a r	am and what's great in it lives on!—, will realize at rg, I quote it according to T. Adorno—'Art doesn't coving to. You see, there is also this kind of etymology: not imperceptible root do we have the true and the ground-distant branch the branch that stands into time the branch that stands into	rt—I am quoting a saying by A.  ome from being able to, it comes ot through what has been derived d; we become aware of it through e branch driven into time by the  Ms.  Arnold Schönberg—, art doesn't e this etymon: not the one derived ne one perceived on the branch—

106

The Poem

Re metaphor, image etc: The pictorial is by no means something visual; it is, like everything else connected with language, a mental phenomenon. Language: is that not an encounter with the invisible It is, 121, 333, 68/384 even in what is furthest from the voice, a question  $\lfloor to_{\rfloor}$  of the accent; in the poem the perception 242 of its soundpattern also belongs to the perceived image. By the breath-steads in which it stands, you recognize it, by the crest-times | That is by no means the same as this or that cheap 400; 394 impressionistic tone-painting, timbre etc. It is, here too, a manifestation of language, a speechart that has to be heard in the written, i.e. the silent (The language-grille, which is also the speechgrille, makes this visible.) 9.10.60, Ts. C 6,3 257 ≻80/303 ---- The state of the free-soaring, of the sublated is levitation 27 Crest-times Time-figures 211 Ms. C 14,4 682∢▶701 The action of the precipitation of language from language is an arbitrary action (i) by the single direction of this arbitrariness-it can be recognized by the unnoticeable, but consequent deviation from the morphological, syntactic and semantic categories—; \*\*\* Ms. ÜR 6.12,19v [1] 259 11/708, 33/111, The poem estranges. It estranges by its existence, by the mode of its existence, it stands opposite and against one, voiceful and voiceless simultaneously, as language, as language setting itself 55, 271, 336, free, as language in statu nascendi—as Valéry once said—, ∟and around the J middle of language 398, 507;32/74, are grouped, - "each word calls for a counter .... 239, 255 \*\*\* Ms. F 10,2 260 340∢▶556 Language in statu nascendi, language setting itself free \*\*\* Ms. F 30,3 113∢▶557 261 as stage direction: vacant lots-rubble etc. 740, 745, 843 possible only as language

***

9.10.60. Ts.

The Poem

256

C 6.2